

Research Center for Emerging Infections and Zoonoses

The Research Center for Emerging Infections and Zoonosis (RIZ) is a state of the art one health research center embedded in the University of Veterinary Medicine in Hannover. The world leading scientist in virology Prof. A.D.M.E. Osterhaus, PhD, DVM is the director of RIZ.

The unique concept of RIZ makes it possible to provide access to the best scientists in their field on short notice. In close collaboration with Prof. Osterhaus new researchers of RIZ will have to go across boundaries and work together in one institute to develop One Health - research to a higher platform.
